ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus, including computer program products, for sharing information. The technique includes defining a stored data set maintained by a first entity to include a locked data set and an unlocked data set, and providing a second entity with access

5        to the stored data set. The second entity has permission to view the locked data set and to change only the unlocked data set.

50147201.doc